

Dr Brice

Dr Brice put her name in the wrong part of the form and inadvertently sectioned herself.

This amused us greatly,
because she was bad for people's mental health.

She went on a trip to Venice,
paid for by the drug company
who were keen to invest in her impartiality.

She changed everyone's meds when she came back.
Carnage ensued and people relapsed.
One man's mental health fell so badly to bits
that he smashed up the ward and put two nurses off sick.

So don't be like Dr Brice.
Just stick to the guidelines from NICE.

Rob Gee, adult mental health, spring 2002
From the book 'The Day My Head Exploded' available at <https://www.robgee.co.uk/Bookshop>